The Honorable John Igliozi
Majority Whip
Providence City Council
Providence City Hall
25 Dorrance St.
Providence, RI 02903

Dear Councilman Igliozi,

Public school districts such as Providence must prioritize their limited funds to achieve maximum results. Every year, our team works painstakingly to craft a budget that supports student achievement and gives educators the tools they need to be effective.

While placing washing machines in school buildings is a laudable enterprise, the $50,000 this effort requires could be better used to fund more urgent and essential needs of the district. For example, this funding could be repurposed to pay for more services for multilingual learners, supports for school social workers or more culturally responsive teaching materials.

Installing washing machines has been a strategy some school districts have used to improve attendance, reasoning that students whose families lack regular access to laundry appliances would be more likely to go to school if they have clean clothes to wear. The Providence Public School District takes the issue of student absenteeism seriously and has already implemented a number of direct strategies—from family text notifications to school-based attendance teams to in-school private counseling services—that begin to address barriers to school attendance.

The RI Dept. of Education (RIDE) has also made the issue of chronic absenteeism a priority; we look forward to collaborating with RIDE, leveraging their tools and expertise to improve attendance and engagement in Providence schools. As our chronic absenteeism rate drops over time, we may revisit the idea of washing machines as a way to further improve student attendance. For now, however, the district believes that $50,000 may be better spent on other interventions.

Sincerely,

Dr. Frances Gallo
Interim Superintendent
