INAUGURAL ADDRESS BY HIS HONOR THE MAYOR

Reverend Clergy, Distinguished Guests, Family and Friends,

MY FELLOW CITIZENS:

We meet here today to continue a tradition of long standing, in which the continuity of municipal government is upheld, and the collective will of the people of this city is once again reaffirmed. I would be less than honest with you if I did not say that this is the proudest moment of my life. I am proud of my country; I am proud of my city, and I am proud of my family who share this great honor with me today.

I am proud of my country because it welcomed my grandfather 80 years ago when he left his native Italy to seek a new opportunity in a land that offered him freedom and the richness to aspire to whatever goal he and his family could attain. I am proud of my city because its glorious heritage is marked by the achievements of so many who placed the welfare of Providence above politics, and because these imaginative and daring people from countless lands and rich traditions discovered that Providence could indeed be theirs if they were willing to give of themselves. And I am proud of my family for giving me a sense of service, as well as the rich opportunity to realize this day. With these strengths, I accept the duties of the office of Mayor, knowing full well the grave responsibilities with which it is charged.

In the years ahead, I will do all that I can to ensure that this government will function with a sense of responsibility that will bring credit on you, the people of this city. To do so, it must respond to your needs with concern, and to act with professional competence. But above all, it must be open to all who would look upon it: open in its deliberations of the city's business; open in its records and the use of its appointive powers; open in its sensitivity to the needs of its citizens as they voiced, or as they become self-evident. Since April of 1974, I have repeatedly called for a return to openness in the government of the City of Providence. Now as Mayor, I solemnly pledge to you that my administration will carry out that promise in every office and in every department.

Those who will serve with me in this government will occupy positions of public trust, positions demanding the strict observance of the very highest ethical standards. In the months ahead, they will be called upon to make decision after decision in which their integrity, their honesty must be above suspicion. To answer to their own conscience alone, might well have been acceptable in the past, but in light of the most recent activities of those whose actions have cast a cloud of suspicion on all elected and appointed officials throughout the land, it is of paramount importance that the highest standards of official conduct be scrupulously maintained at all times. To this end, I shall begin my administration by urging the enactment of a stringent conflict of interest code for all elected and appointed officials, and for all in the employ of this city. If we are to restore public confidence in government, and if we are to attract the most qualified people to work in government service at all levels, then we must do all that we can to root out malfeasance and impropriety in office, and to re-establish sound ethical practices in all that we do.

With openness and integrity, then, we can begin to make the new beginning that is called for in these times: a new beginning to the revitalization of the downtown business area, by attracting new office buildings, new stores, new restaurants, and new shops; by refurbishing the old and restoring the decayed, by repairing and resurfacing both our streets and our buildings, and thereby creating a climate of excitement and enthusiasm that has been sorely missing for too long in the center of this once proud city. Where have all our shoppers gone? Why is our population no greater now than it was in 1900? The lure to the suburbs and greener pastures has taken its toll. Downtown renewal is the first step to economic revival. Downtown can be our Greener pastures. Other cities have done it... so shall we! I can assure you that my office will be open to each and every group of businessmen who have joined together in our Chamber of Commerce and in various foundations with the purpose of restoring our central business district to its former high reputation. And in partnership we can begin to turn things around for the benefit of all our people.

In the neighborhoods too, we must seize the opportunity to restore the beautiful, to regain the full sense of community and friendship that once characterized each district, each area of Providence as a place of warm memories and deep loyalty. Where restoration of public property is called for, this administration will seek whatever manpower and funds it can provide to clean up, to paint up, to landscape and design, to do all that it can to fulfill its role as a responsive and responsible force in the community. Where private funding is needed, whether it be individual mortgages or more substantial long term loans, this administration will do all in its power to urge the financial community to continue its present involvement, or to begin to play a more significant role where it has previously been uninvolved. Like all of you, I am deeply concerned by the steady erosion of our neighborhoods, and I shall do all in my power to help those who singly or in groups would help themselves and their neighbors to arrest this urban decay and to restore these important areas of our community.

With our waterfront as well, this city must have a new beginning. Those 875 acres must become the site of new construction for multiple business and mixed usage, a place for recreation and refreshment; indeed, for the proper utilization of immensely valuable property that can add additional monies to the city's tax rolls and make our port one of national prominence. But, of greater importance, by complementing the best aspects of Project Interface, which it undergirds with its sound economic strength, this waterfront redevelopment can send out its sense of urban renewal to the Park area and to some of our most decayed neighborhoods which are close by. There is much that needs to be done in this area of our city if we have the skill and daring, the boldness to plan and to execute for the future economic growth of Providence and its surrounding communities.

This new beginning throughout the city will not come easily and will not come overnight. But, in a city of this size, our problems can be solved; our best efforts can bring success. There is much to be proud of in this city that we love, for if you look around at the priceless treasures that our forefathers have created, then we can take heart from their valuable legacy to us all: the international reputations of our outstanding educational institutions; the magnificent cathedrals, churches and public buildings that grace our city; the outstanding libraries, hospitals, museums, and theatres that have been entrusted to us to keep alive. But more than all of these has been the creativity and industry of our people, who have repeatedly demonstrated their concern for this, their city.

And what we must do in these years ahead will require a spirit of adventure and excitement, matching that sense of purpose and resolve that our grandfathers had when they dared to take that first step, that signaled a new beginning for their own lives, in a land of promise thousands of miles and an ocean away from their birthright. I ask all of you who would serve our city to join with me, not for what we can gain as individuals, but for what we can realize in the quality of life for our children and our children's children. Let us make them proud that one day they can say that we dared to dream our dreams and to see our visions. The work may be very difficult, but if we work together, then together we shall enjoy a new beginning, the rebirth of a better Providence.

My friends, my fellow citizens, come join me in this exciting task that lies before us, and let us take that first step towards that new beginning... together!

The Mayor and the Members of the City Council return to the Chamber of the City Council and PRESIDING OFFICER PEARLMAN calls the meeting to order.
