OUR 1893 ROTARY STEAM CLOTH PRESS Is made of New Designs and Patterns throughout, and is Fully Guaranteed.

The Patent Bed gives four points of contact, and also allows the goods to press entirely up to the seams. The goods are pressed uniformly throughout their entire length and breadth, and any extra thickness of the cloth does not strain the machine in any way, as is the case where screws are used to give pressure.

We also manufacture Patent Friction Couplings, Shaftings, Hangers and Pulleys, for all classes of work.

PREFACE.

THE publication of this number of the Providence Directory marks the seventy-fifth anniversary of the beginning of the work in 1824. It was, at first, a small pamphlet four and one-half by seven inches in measurement, containing about 2800 names and was published by Brown & Danforth. Mr. H. H. Brown continued the publication at intervals until 1859, when it was purchased by Adams, Sampson, & Co., who, with their successors, the present firm of SAMPSON, MURDOCK, & Co., introduced the Business Directory, and afterwards the State Business Directory, with many other additions and improvements, till now this portly volume of over 1500 pages is presented to the public.

To MR. DE WITT C. WHITE is largely due the credit of directing the growth and development of this publication during the past sixteen years. Entering the employ of the firm April 7, 1868, after faithful service for his Country as a soldier in the war of the Rebellion, and a brief career as a lawyer, his energy and integrity of character soon won for him promotion in the Directory office; removing to Providence in 1881, he became a partner in 1886, and since that time the Rhode Island business of the firm has been largely intrusted to him. We wish to record our high estimate of the character and career of Mr. White. Always high-minded, animated by worthy purposes, guided by true Christian principles, generous, genial, possessed of high and noble qualities of mind and heart, he attracted to himself many who were proud to call him friend. Those nearest to him will not cease to feel "the touch of the vanished hand, and the sound of the voice that is still." He passed away April 3, 1899, at the age of fifty-four, sincerely mourned, greatly loved and respected by all.

We are glad to print the name of Mr. Thomas R. Briggs in this edition, handed down from 1824 and all intervening issues of the Directory.

Attention is directed to the table of changes below, showing the very large increase in names this year, and also the largest percentage of changes in the alphabetical list ever recorded, partly owing to the annexation of a portion of Johnston. The other departments have also been extended, as will be seen by examining the Index to Contents on page 3.

The publishers wish especially to acknowledge the courtesy and valuable assistance of the city officials, officers of societies, institutions, and others, which are indispensable to make a correct work of this kind, and also to the many patrons, who, during the business depressions have continued their strong support to this enterprise.

Having received the patronage and confidence of the public so many years, we consider it our duty in return to caution all against spurious Directory concerns that have been at work in Providence and other cities, collecting money on forged or raised orders, for directories that have no circulation whatever beyond the ones carried by the solicitors. An effort is being made by the ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN DIRECTORY PUBLISHERS, with which our firm is connected, to protect the public against such fraudulent advertising schemes, and we earnestly request the co-operation of all Rhode Island advertisers, to notify our office concerning any suspicious canvassers. Some of these swindlers have been arrested and punished, but there are others still operating, and our patrons are cautioned not to pay any doubtful orders to strangers working under some high sounding title, nor sign any "cash voucher," or any other voucher, a portion of which can be erased with acids and an order printed over a genuine signature, or else so worded that by cutting off one end it is altered from a receipt to an order for further payments. Also beware of all canvassers who attempt to collect in advance of publication.

The "Providence House Directory" has become a standard publication, in greater demand than ever, and is issued again at the same time with this book.
