Concerns: Black Congress

Existing Buildings: If it becomes "Historical" the restrictions imposed would put undo hardship on present property owners in trying to maintain their buildings via the standard of the Society - thereby possibly causing more abandoned property - then being picked up by out of city investors who ultimately allow the building to go to rot when it appears that it fails when it is put to the positive cash flow formula.

Instead we should allow for helping to rehabilitate in a more economically wise fashion and be sensitive to the existing population in the area.

New Structures:

By using wise planning, new homes that can fit the neighborhood while not necessarily meeting historical standards, can be built in an affordable fashion, allowing the growth of the area with the new culturally rich and diverse people settling there now.

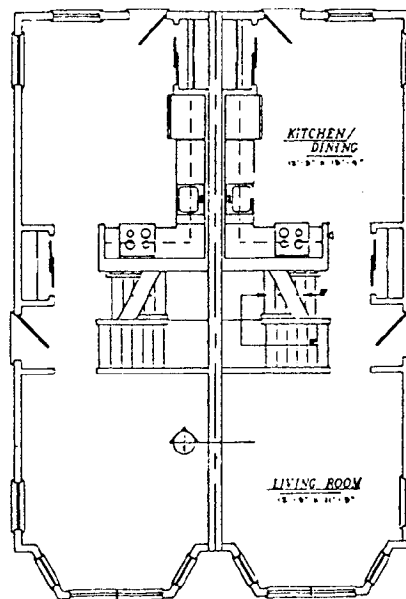

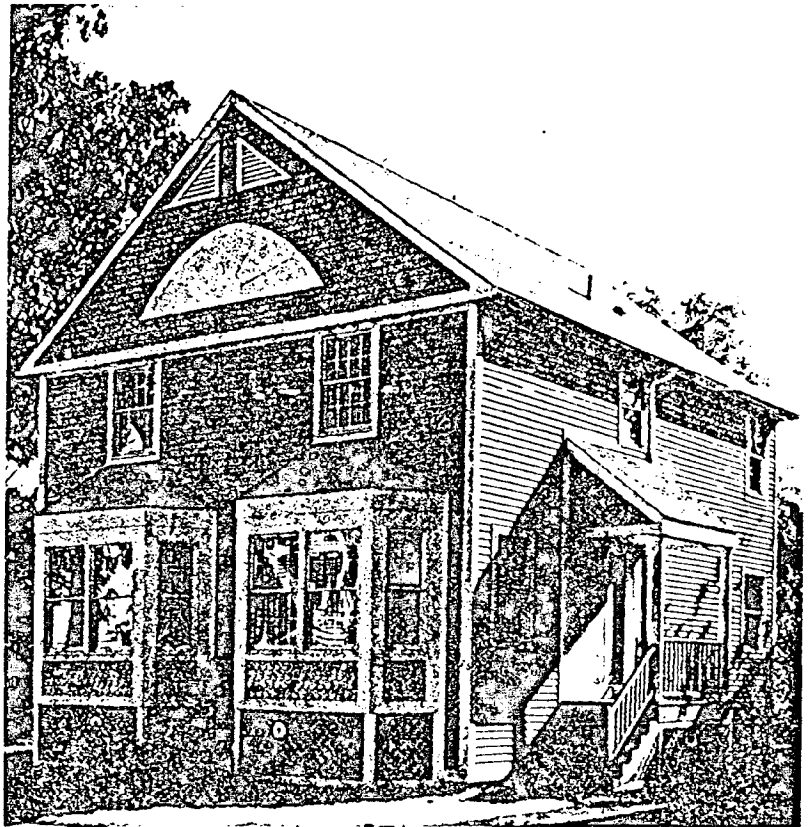

Common sense and practicality must be applied for the good of the neighborhood people. We can't and shouldn't turn all of Providence into an unaffordable museum.
