Alan J. Chille, General Manager of the Providence Performing Arts Center, is a graduate of Rhode Island College. While at RIC, he managed the "Rathskellar College Pub," served as Operations Manager of the student union building and oversaw programming as Assistant Director of Student Activities and Programming. Alan left RIC to work as the Concessions Manager at the Worcester Centrum (now the DCU Center) for a time before joining PPAC in 1984. In his over 30 years as General Manager, Alan has overseen $25 million worth of capital facility improvements. With the establishment of Professional Facilities Management in 1989, a for-profit subsidiary of PPAC, Alan extended his responsibilities to PFM facilities as the Vice President of Operations. He spearheaded the theatrical consulting of the Durham Performing Arts Center, a theater in North Carolina opened in 2008 that is managed by PFM.

Alan remains active in his college fraternity, Kappa Delta Phi. He currently serves on the Rhode Island College Foundation Board of Directors, FirstWorks Board of Directors, The Veterans Memorial Auditorium Foundation and is a member of the International Association of Assembly Managers (IAAM). He is also a member of the Rhode Island Commodores.

In 2009, he established an endowment at RIC, the Alan J. Chille Leadership Excellence Award, which is presented annually to a student who exemplifies what it means to be a student leader.
