Humanitarian Award Recipient Ms. Ruth Williams

TOUCHED BY A REAL ANGEL

by Deana R. Burns

Community Development Specialist
Urban League of Rhode Island

Once or twice in your life, if you're very lucky, you meet someone who is truly remarkable. The kind of person who reaches out and changes peoples lives for the better. Someone who is so wonderful and loving that you know they are a special angel sent from God. I was fortunate enough to meet one of these people when I visited with Ms. Ruth Williams at her home in Providence. Ms. Williams is this year's recipient of the Urban League of Rhode Island's Humanitarian Award.

Sitting with Ruth in her home I could feel the warmth in the room from the tokens of love given to her by her foster children. On one wall hangs a plaque given to Ruth from her son Maurice it reads, "When I think of love, I think of you, who helped me grow up straight and true. I can never repay you. But ... one thing I can do [is] tell you again ...I love you."

The words foster children are not apart of Ruth's vocabulary, the 64 children that she has taken into her home are simply, "my children." I spoke with Alberta Ali, one of Ruth's foster care children who is now 42 years old and the mother of six children. She told me, "Ma was a good mother and still is. I'm glad she brought me up. She raised all of us kids in the church and taught us how important education was. Ma always made sure we had clothes on our backs and food on the table. Ma was strict, we couldn't smoke or drink or have boys in the house." Alberta feels exceptionally lucky because she was pregnant when she entered the fostercare system. "Nobody wanted pregnant foster children until ma found me and brought me home."

Much of Ruth's strength comes from her spiritual beliefs. She has been a member of God's Holy Tabernacle Church for over 30 years and she serves as Pastor Aid President. Many of Ruth's children sang in the church children's choir. "I'm filled with the Holy Ghost. I've got a mind to live right, do right, and treat everyone right. I'd give my kids anything I have, even my last piece of bread. If I see birds on my porch I feed them, if I see a hungry dog on the street I feed it too." Ruth has passed her caring philosophy on to her children. As Alberta says, "Ma taught me well and I'm trying to pass along her wisdom to my children."

Ruth has a message for parents who will read this article. "It's not about material things - it's about how you raise your child. Today, the world is more wicked than wise. There's so much violence and drug abuse in our society and our kids see all of it. You can't preach to your kids to do right if your not living right yourself."

As I was getting ready to leave, Ruth stood up and began singing an old spiritual song with the words. I want peace and happiness. Ruth is at peace with the knowledge that her life has been well spent. "Honey, Jesus is soon to come. I know I'm going to heaven because in this life I've served God."

Resolution naming playground
on Dudley St.
For

The Family of Betty Ruth Williams

would like to thank Councilwoman Balbina Young, community board members, city of Providence and the Parks Dept. for hearing the proposal on naming the Park on Dudley St in memory of the late Betty Ruth Williams.

We are requesting that the site consist of a group of park benches, a monument stone, and a flower garden. There is a small hill area at the corner entrance of Prairie and Dudley.
There is also a tree shading the area. This area is also located across the street from the home she resided in for many years. We think this location would be ideal.

She was a resident of South Providence for over 50 years and for over 40 years she cared for numerous foster children. She was recognized by the Urban League for her outstanding service. She helped and cared for many people throughout the South Providence community.
