

CITY OF PROVIDENCE RHODE ISLAND

The Credo of the Providence City Council is to be Industrious, to be Watchful and to Promote Peace. The bee, as a symbol of industry, is derived from the early colonial saying "Busy as a Bee"; the goose, as a symbol of watchfulness, is derived from the story of the goose whose cackling saved Rome; and the lamb, as a symbol of peace, is derived from the biblical use of the lamb as a symbol of peace.

INVOCATION

The Invocation is given by ROCHELLE LEE.

"Today, we come together to celebrate a new year and the swearing in of City Council members. They will each take an oath of public service to protect and promote the interests of all who made their city as their home, a work place or a destination. Today's ceremony is brightened by a long awaited milestone we thought would not come this soon. Our fifteen council members are from the ranks of many full generations. A diversity of cultures, spoken first languages, race, national origin, lived experience and gender identity. For only the third time in the council's history this body will be led by a woman, a woman with extraordinary talent who leads with an abundance of grass roots skills. For the first time the council will also be led by a queer woman. As a city we are blessed to have such a diversity of prospectives and talents to govern the peoples house. With your swearing in today, you stand on the shoulders of numerous complementary council members. There are many to emulate, but I will mention one in particular, Councilman Miguel Luna. Some of whom you know and admire. If Miguel were here today I know he would say a servant leader understands and embraces shared ideas, collective responsibility, team work, inclusion and fairness. He would insist that as elected officials your success rests in the pursuit of truth, but you must instinctively rebut the destructive reach of economic inequality, social injustice and disregard completely apathy and disinterest for those who are less fortunate. Miguel would also tell you to use your power to give voice to those who would only speak in whispers. So, as you go about your work consider the words of Angela Davis, an award winning scholar and heroic fighter for human rights. She once said "I am no longer excepting things I cannot change, I am changing things I cannot except". These words are the seeds of faith, faith in our human capacity to change the world for the better. So, grow your faith and your collective willpower to be the ages of change we desperately need right now. As a council you will ponder numerous issues that impact our social and environmental wellness. Do not shy away from its daunting nature because these are changes that only worsen with neglect. Kicking the can down the road is no longer an option, today, tomorrow or the days after. As officials managing the affairs of our city hesitate not to ask questions and challenge premises and promises which too often obscure the persistent and dangerous economic divide between the haves and the have nots. As our voices in government know we are counting on you not to turn a blind eye to those experiencing hardship or in despair because a just society leaves no one behind. Treat all you need as equally important as your neighbors, your local constituents and potential partners, if you do you will flourish as leaders. As you execute your duties here seek to engage those who are helping others, their work will lessen the weight on your shoulders. Remember the issues and tasks before you are the people's business. Choose to work with others who care about our city particularly those who show up when there is nothing finished on the table. As city councilors your decisions must be informed by the breath of ideas and proven efforts which expand and deepen the reach of Providence's growing prosperity and remember to cherish each day with a sense of hope, joy, purpose and promise. The responsibilities of your council work can be merciless on your family, family relations, your friendships, your spirits, your good health. With fifteen diverse neighborhoods calling upon this council our destiny and identity as a thriving city is in your hands. Your success is our success. We need you each to love and care for us and for one another just as if we were the faces in your circle of supporters. As you will soon take oath to faithfully represent the people of Providence please accept our thanks for wanting to do this work. In conclusion, let us acknowledge that the City of Providence stands on the traditional lands of the Narragansett Nation and the Niantic people. With profound respect who knows the enduring relationship between Rhode Island’s indigenous people and this land. For generations indigenous peoples have been mis stewards of the land we occupy. The ocean and the entire earth. We are here today because the history and present day traditions of Rhode Island’s indigenous nations. So, continue to render your fellowship and support to uplift a long struggle for justice, tribal independence and economic empowerment. Again, my best wishes to council’s new leadership team and our sincere thanks for each and every one of you and your service.”
